Re: Violation of Mutual NDA

Mr. Riley:

I represent U.S. Well Services LLC (“USWS”) in intellectual property matters. USWS and ST9 Inc. (“ST9”) are parties to the Mutual Confidentiality and Nondisclosure Agreement dated May 24, 2017 (“Mutual NDA”). The Mutual NDA protects, among other things, USWS’s inventions, drawings, product specifications, and other technical documents and know-how. Such Confidential Information, as defined in the Mutual NDA, must be kept “in strict confidence” and cannot be used “to compete in any direct or indirect manner” against USWS.

Pursuant to the Mutual NDA, USWS disclosed the blueprints and other technical documents for various multi-plunger fracking pumps, including a seven-plunger and nine-plunger model. It has come to USWS’s attention that ST9 is now marketing these same models. For example, as of March 6, 2020, ST9 was advertising a seven-plunger fracking pump and nine-plunger fracking pump on LinkedIn.

ST9 has breached the Mutual NDA by using USWS's Confidential Information to compete with USWS and for other reasons outside the defined purpose of the Mutual NDA.

In addition, USWS has reason to believe that an employee of ST9 shared financial information with one of USWS's major customers. The financial information shared is Confidential Information under the Mutual NDA and thus an additional breach of the Mutual NDA.

Please respond by Friday, March 27, 2020, confirming that ST9 will: (1) cease production of nine-plunger pumps; (2) remove all advertisements of same; (3) certify to the destruction of USWS's Confidential Information or return all copies; and (4) refrain from any further use of USWS's Confidential Information.

Sincerely,

/s/ Taylor Evans
